JUSTICE HENDRICK ANNOUNCES TODAY THAT HE ADOPTS VERDICT OF JURY.

STATE TAKES APPEAL

Court Scores Alienists Who Assisted State in Preparation of Case Against Thaw.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, July 15.—Harry K. Thaw, adjudged sane last Wednesday by a jury, was given his freedom today by Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hendrick, who announced that he had adopted the jury verdict.

State Takes Appeal

The state immediately served notice of appeal and Justice Hendrick fixed Thaw's bail at $25,000, to insure his presence at future proceedings. A press company was prepared to give Thaw a bond and Thaw was taken from the court room to the judge's chamber so that details might be arranged.

A crowd that numbered several hundred lined the sidewalks and overtopped the streets around the court house, cheered Thaw and applauded wildly when he appeared on the court steps.

In announcing his decision Justice Hendrick took occasion to comment unfavorably upon the action of alienists who had assisted the state in preparing the case and then appeared as expert witnesses in court.

Thaw smiles at decision. "I have reached a decision in this case," he said, "and it is based on my own mind, fortified by the action of the jury."

The sitting comfortably in his chair, his counsel on each side, his wife and his sister a few feet behind him, showed his pleasure and anticipated the court's decision with a gleam in his eye.

"I want to say a word about the alienists," Justice Hendrick continued. "We have been told by one alienist that it is impossible to determine the sanity or insanity of a person without using the word of alienists. This court and jury cannot depend upon the word of an alienist who for years has devoted himself to a case of this kind and who has no other preparation. That a doctor can help prepare a case and then go on the stand as an expert witness is wrong."

Matter for Legislature. "I hope the legislature of the state will find some means to correct this. Some other method should be adopted. Gentlemen, I have adopted the verdict of the jury. I declare now that it is the decision of this court that Harry K. Thaw is sane."

BIG CROWD GREETES HARRY AFTER JURY HOLDS HIM SANE

Harry Thaw feels good. You can see that by his smile as he left Judge Hendrick's court, July 14th, after a New York jury had brought in a verdict that they found the prisoner to be sane. Thaw, with cigar in hand, is smiling at the ovation of the crowd as he is leaving the supreme court building.

BERNSTORFF HOLDS A CONFERENCE WITH SECRETARY LANSING

Discuss Situation Relative to Submarine Warfare—Claims German Note Provides Means of Settlement.

Washington, July 15.—Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, had an engagement today to confer with Secretary of State Lansing on the situation that has arisen between Germany and the United States over Germany's method of submarine warfare.

The ambassador was to present the German view that a way had been opened by the latest German note for a move by the United States towards settlement of the whole problem of the warfare.

Such an adjustment would bring about an understanding not only as to Germany's submarine campaign, but also as to England's orders-in-council which Germany holds responsible for her undersea activities.

Count von Bernstorff, it is understood, hopes that there may be a possibility of mediation on the part of the United States between Great Britain and Germany, which eventually may result in the establishment of the freedom of the sea principle for which the United States contends.

Austrian Note Pleasable. Berlin, July 15.—The news items given by the Over Seas News Agency today was the following:

The German newspapers continue to express high satisfaction regarding the Austro-Hungarian note to the United States in the matter of war munitions. The note is considered a testimony of the good will and sincere political judgment of the Teutonic allies.

The Vossische Zeitung hopes that the strong neutral argument will impress and convert President Wilson as ex-Secretary of State Bryan was converted before. The newspaper says that the United States now has a golden opportunity to show its readiness to observe a true neutrality in spirit, but it is skeptical about the effect the note will have.

CENTRAL OHIO TOWNS MENACED BY FLOODS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Columbus, O., July 15.—Swollen by torrential rains that have fallen throughout the last few days, many points in central Ohio were menaced today by floods that threatened to approach the magnitude of the great flood of March, 1913, when more than 500 persons were drowned and billions of dollars of property were destroyed.

The Ottawa river had overrun large areas in Lima, where more than half a million less was sustained. Considerable damage was done at Kenton. Other villages in that section were cut off from communication. In Columbus an old levee in the north-west side broke early today, flooding six city blocks. The Mount street bridge was swept away this afternoon.

CONVICT ROBERTSON ON FORGERY CHARGE

Beloit Man Who Attempted to Escape Jail Here Will Be Sentenced on Saturday Morning.

Henry H. Robertson, of Beloit, was found guilty by a jury of twelve men, in the Beloit municipal court, of forgery, yesterday afternoon after a short deliberation. Robertson attempted to escape from the Rock county jail last week and his being held here awaiting his sentence Saturday morning in solitary confinement in the upper cells. No visitors are allowed to see him by the jail authorities.

Attorney E. H. Ryan, of Janesville, appeared in the defense of Robertson and made a special plea of insanity. The jury rendered a verdict that Robertson was sane at the conclusion of the case. Robertson was called to the stand in the afternoon and cross-examination brought out the fact that he was addicted to drugs and liquor for many years. It was brought out by Attorney Ryan that Robertson was not accountable for his actions.

District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie made an able argument to the jury that Robertson committed an inexcusable forgery when he signed a check passed on James Clark for the sum of $34.50 made out in the name of Charles H. Robertson, for whom Robertson worked. The check, it was testified, was obtained when Merriman paid off Robertson for his work and accidentally tore two blanks while the trial was proceeding. Sheriff Chamberlain sat in the court room with a warrant charging Robertson with another forgery, this one on J. C. Murray, of Beloit, who it is said was also a victim of Robertson's skilled penmanship. This would have been served had Robertson been acquitted of the other charge.

MOOSE BAND IN FALL WHEN STAND CRASHES

None Hurt When Platform Collapses Holding Twenty-Five Men—Many Instruments Damaged.

The program of the Moose band concert, held at the Court House park last night, was suddenly interrupted when the platform, which was being gaved away and the entire platform collapsed with twenty-five members of the band, about nine-thirty, after all but two selections had been given. Although there was no one injured, several of the instruments were considerably damaged to the extent of over forty dollars.

All during the early part of the evening a crowd of young boys had been playing around the stand and some venturing under the platform. One of these youngsters was seen to pull at one of the horses, holding up the platform, and it is believed this caused the accident. It was a miracle that no one was injured, for just a few minutes before the fall, a young boy, who had left his bicycle under the platform, crawled underneath the platform and took his wheel away. There were many people surrounding the band and the fall came just as the musicians were about to start the last few pieces.

To the Moose band will give another concert next Monday evening at the Court House park, where ice cream and cake will be served for ten cents to help defray the expense of having the instruments repaired, that were damaged in the fall of the stand last night.

COUNTERFEITERS IN CHICAGO ARRESTED; YOUTH HEADS GANG

Mint of False Money Is Found at West Side Rooming House—Boards Refuse to Pay Rent.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, July 15.—What purports to be false Minnesota state bonds representing $25,000, and counterfeit currency to the amount of a quarter of a million dollars, were found today by police who entered a west side rooming house to quell a disturbance among the boarders and landlady. Although the boarders had a trunk full of spurious money that they had refused to pay their rent, the argument became so noisy that passing officers entered the house. Two thousand genuine $1 bills which had been raised to $5 were found also.

The four boarders were in the neighborhood and in the house the officers found the usual machinery connected with the making of counterfeit money.

The police announced after questioning the men that Samuel Robbins, 22, formerly of 28 West 2nd street, Duluth, had confessed and that they considered him the leader of the band. Robbins said that the money was made in Duluth. "Did you make it all yourself?" he was asked. "Was any of it passed here?"

"Only $300. We were going to South Chicago, where we thought we could pass some more."

Capt. Porter of the secret service said he considered Robbins "smart as a steel trap."

"Robbins made a complete confession," continued Capt. Porter. "A fifth man was taken into custody later. It is said that Robbins implicated only himself and his two assistants as the actual makers of the counterfeit money, and said that two other prisoners who gave names of Benjamin Saltzman and John Berkowitz were engaged in passing the money. The exact amount of counterfeit money recovered was $23,800 and the Minnesota bonds $25,000."

FRISCO CHINATOWN IN MIST OF TONG WAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] San Francisco, July 15.—Terror lurks in every Chinatown on the Pacific coast because of the tong war which is being waged in darkness and in secret, between the Sui Sing and the Sen Sui. The strife is especially bitter here. Gunmen crouch in every shadow, stalking their prospective victims under the very eyes of the police. The Big One Tong is reported to be on the verge of joining the fray, while several other powerful organizations are preparing for hostilities.

With the tongs, it appears to be a point of honor never to cease the conflict unless the tally of killed and wounded during the war is even. Thus, when attempts were made to end the present hostilities, the Sen Sui would listen to no peace proposals until they had earned up the score. Hatchmen prowled the gloomy streets of Chinatown. There were shots in the night, hurly calls for the patrol wagon, scufflings and sudden death.

Now the Sui Sing Tong has announced that it will not talk about peace unless the Sen Sui agree not to prosecute any Sui Sing men on charges growing out of the war.

DEMAND FOR SECOND HAND VESSELS INCREASES PRICE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, July 15.—The demand for second-hand tonnage continues unabated and high prices are being paid largely because merchant shipbuilding is at a standstill while the yards are engaged on government work. An instance of the keen demand for tonnage is the recent sale of the Austrian steamer Concordia.

Although this vessel was sold a year ago last March for $28,500, it was knocked down at $50,000, nearly three times its previous record, at the recent sale.

SUBSTITUTE BOARD BILL IS ADOPTED

SENATE INDORSES STAUNDEN-MAYER PLAN FOR CENTRAL BOARD OF EDUCATION.

STEMPER BILL PASSES

Amended Measure Raises Saloon Limit to One for Every 500 People for the Entire State.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, July 15.—The passage of the central board of education bill as amended by the adoption of the Staundenmayer substitute for a board of five members to manage the fiscal affairs of the state's educational institutions; the killing without a word of discussion of the Bennett bill proposing to replace the three members of the tax commission by a one man board; and concurrence in the Stemper liquor license bill radically revised, marked the senate session today before that body adjourned.

Monday. The central board passed by a vote of 16 to 5. There was no roll call on the tax commission bill.

The Stemper bill passed by a vote of 18 to 4. It raises the saloon limit from 1 to every 250 people, to 1 to every 500 people, and makes the law apply to the whole state instead of Milwaukee only as the governor originally desired. The chief of police in every city is empowered to pass upon the location of stands to be reopened or relicensed.

Under the amendment to the Stemper bill adopted by the senate today, all saloons continually in existence since July 1, 1907, are preserved in their license rights.

The limitation of one saloon to every 500 inhabitants applies only to new wet territory.

For example, should Madison, for example, should go dry one year and wet the next year, all licenses then to be granted must be in the ratio of one for every 500 inhabitants. Where Madison now has 38 saloons, under such conditions it would be limited to 44. In no way does the bill reduce the number of saloons in the city of Milwaukee.

The detachment of territory from Shawano county and its annexation to Outagamie county for the purpose of creating the county of Burke, was sanctioned by the assembly today, 30 to 39, when it passed the Plesiger bill to accomplish that purpose.

Pass Bichler Bill. The assembly passed the Bichler bill to decrease the butler tax on rents from 50 to 43 per cent, and passed two small appropriation bills which will decrease the 1915 appropriations by $2,185.

The bill to abolish the office of state claim agent was placed on next Tuesday's calendar.

The assembly reconsidered the vote by which the Crosby bill for a marketing bill and sent it to the senate. The assembly took a recess until 4 o'clock.

HANG ILLINOIS MAN FOR KILLING WIFE

Execution at Sunrise Today at Clayton, Mo.—Condemned Man Maintains Innocence.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] St. Louis, Mo., July 15.—William H. Sprouse, of East St. Louis, Ill., was hanged at Clayton, Mo., shortly after sunrise today for the murder of his wife. To the last Sprouse maintained his innocence.

The most startling evidence of incendiary found was several long candles. The firemen refused to say whether they saw any evidence to declare they came from the Dudley residence and were found this morning.

Close inspection of one, which had been found in some of the wreckage, showed marks as if some one had been resting its burning capacity with regards to the time required to burn to the marks. In the rear of the residence is a fifty gallon gasoline tank placed between the house and the garage. This tank, it is understood, was where Dr. Dudley stored gasoline for use in his automobile. The door to this tank was found open, the padlock being unlocked. The tank was nearly empty.

When what was reported to Chief Klein the fire started in one of the cellar rooms somewhere near a barrel filled with straw, which was badly burned. The six rooms in the cellar were found to be in a state of confusion, much of the equipment, including pictures and tools, were destroyed.

From the stairway leading to the first floor, a large sea rapier and a knife were found. The room was heavily damaged by the fire. It was noted that in some places the wall paper was scorched, the paint peeling off, but no other signs of fire for several feet on either side.

It appears that there was no one at home in the residence last night. Mrs. Dudley and her son John, were reported to be out of the city. Investigation showed the Dr. Dudley was said to be out of the city, and from an employee at the Jackson block, where Dr. Dudley has his office, it was learned that Dr. Dudley had been going to Kenosha. His associates had not seen him since Thursday at the office. He could not work in the city and his automobile was not in the garage.

Fire Chief H. C. Klein would not commit himself on the origin of the fire other than to relate "it looks like the work of a firebug from all standpoint." The fire chief traced proper kind and a thorough investigation will probably be made by the state authorities.

IS DUDLEY FIRE OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN?

BLAZE AT RESIDENCE OF DR. EDWARD H. DUDLEY MOST MYSTERIOUS.

SUSPICIOUS EVIDENCE

Vessels Containing Oil and Gasoline Found in Various Parts of the Home After Fire Is Extinguished.

Was the fire which did several hundred dollars worth of damage to the residence of Dr. Edward H. Dudley, 325 South Main street, of incendiary origin and if so who is to blame for it, is the problem that confronts Fire Chief Henry Klein and will have to be answered by the officials of the state fire marshal's office when they arrive to make an investigation. The blaze which was discovered early this morning while Dr. Dudley was away from home first gained headway when the entire residence would have been destroyed. As it is the basement is seriously damaged and the upper floors are smoked and will entail a heavy loss.

The suspicious circumstances of the fire are the discovery of numerous containers containing gasoline and other inflammable oils scattered throughout the house from the basement to the attic stairway. The burning of woodwork in locations where the actual fire did not reach, the disorder of the rooms and the fact that while the windows and doors were all closed tightly, the interior doors of the main floor were wide open and papers and other litter which would have been quick fuel for the flames if reached were found scattered about.

Neither Dr. Dudley or his daughter, Mrs. Heath, could be located this morning, both being out of the city on Wednesday night. They were late last evening or early this morning by auto, as he was seen about six o'clock, while Mrs. Heath is supposed to have been in the city. The location of the fire will remain a mystery as to how so much inflammable material was placed in the house. One theory advanced is that some one knowing of the absence of the family attempted to revenge himself upon them for some fancied wrong and prepared the fuel for the flames, placing a lighted candle on a table of inflammable material and then leaving the house.

It was shortly after six o'clock when a pedestrian saw smoke coming from the south cellar windows. The fire alarm was pulled at box 37, bringing the department with full equipment to the scene shortly afterwards. Two ladders of hose were laid from the hydrants, but the firemen were unable to enter the doors, which were closed. The fire was then forced into dense oily fumes from the cellar. The windows were broken and the cellar flooded. Being suspicious of the color of the fire, Chief Klein then made an effort to enter the cellar through the windows and doors were forced to gain ingress. On entering there was danger in advancing to the interior by the use of ladders and the firemen were forced to enter the cellar through the windows and doors were forced to gain ingress. On entering there was danger in advancing to the interior by the use of ladders and the firemen were forced to enter the cellar through the windows and doors were forced to gain ingress.

When a part of the smoke had been cleared from the upstairs section, Chief Klein and several of the firemen went on an inspection of the room around the house. Everything was in disorder. Furniture was strewn about, chairs toppled over, curtains torn and the windows and doors were under cover and beds and all doors within the house were opened and the window shades down.

The first in the basement was under control and the fire-fighters went up the stairs. At the head of the stairway they found a wash boiler more than five feet high in the corner of the room. There was a distinct odor of gasoline and this smell could be distinguished in all of the upper floors. Two fruit baskets, one in the corner and one in the middle of the room, seemed to be "left carelessly" in the path of the fire had it communicated that far.

When the vessels were removed by Chief Klein and taken to the fire station, later in the morning a portion of the liquid was taken from the wash boiler and spread on the fire station floor. A match was placed in the liquid and it burned freely. Another jar fully two feet high, holding an immense amount of the same smelling liquid, was found in the corner of the room. The most startling evidence of incendiary found was several long candles. The firemen refused to say whether they saw any evidence to declare they came from the Dudley residence and were found this morning.

HINDENBURG LEADS ARMY INTO POLAND

HAND TO HAND BATTLE

Bomb and Grenade Fighting Taken Place of Artillery Action on French Battlefields.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 15.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has again come into the limelight, which brings the Germans within the zone which they reached last winter when the Polish capital as saved by a Russian counter offensive.

Petrograd appears not to be greatly disturbed over the latest German drive, claiming that much severe fighting must be done before Warsaw can be surrounded by the forces of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and von Mackensen.

Flight Along Dnieper. In southeastern Galicia, the east German armies are making their way across the Dnieper river under a heavy Russian artillery fire, which has prevented the troops crossing in several places.

Fighting again is becoming lively in the most distant portion of the Russian front—in the Caucasus—where both the Turks and the Russians claim success.

Hard to Hand Battle. Bomb and grenade fighting is now taking the place of artillery action in the fighting in France, indicating that the lines are closely gripped in the form of struggle, which so often has led to a virtual draw along the western front.

The men of the Welsh collieries are still on strike and there is no indication that an early settlement will be reached.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 15.—The German submarine U-51 has been sunk in the Black Sea by Russian warships, according to information received from the Russian forces advancing from Varna, a Bulgarian port on the Black Sea, by the Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company.

The U-51 gained fame by eluding the British blockade and passing through the Strait of Gibraltar. The U-51 has been credited with sinking several vessels belonging to the allies, including the British battleship Majestic.

She did much to prevent the allies' warships from co-operating with the land forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Fashion strides with seven-leaved boots in advance of the seasons.

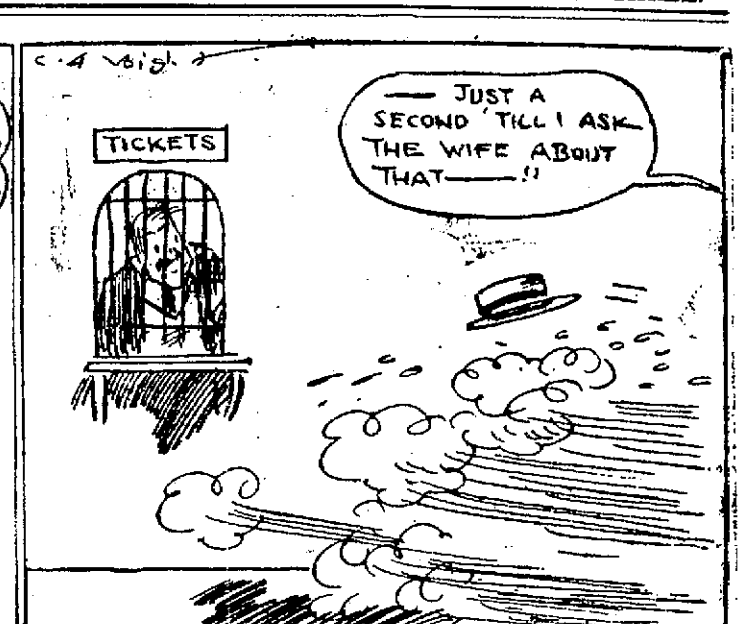

In January women began wearing straw hats—and now in July velvet crowns are beginning to appear.

It's curious but interesting—and to the women who desire to be in style vastly important.

The advertising in a live newspaper like The Gazette echoes the news of fashion.

That fact increases its interest to the average woman a hundred-fold.

WHITE BOUT SHOWS WELSH NOT TO HOLD TITLE NEXT SEASON

Welsh Takes to Woods in Hopes of Recovering Skill. Match Between Dundee and Britton Should Be Good. (By Strikes.)

Freddie Welsh's term of office in the lightweight division is on the wane, for the man from Wales is slipping and slipping fast. The world's lightweight title which he has in his keeping, will not remain in his possession much longer.

This prediction, sounded often, is warranted by Welsh's late battles in the ring with "Jackie" Lightweights, especially his New York bout with Charley White, the knock-out Chicago left-hander. Welsh's retrogression has been expected for some time because nature is bound to fail as Welsh is the oldest fighter to date in the title since the days of Joe Gans. Welsh's showing with White recently showed that his disposition is not far from that of the old days. The Englishman was at his best in this battle. He had trained faithfully and he boxed better against White, according to New York reports, than he had ever done against any other lightweight.

Not for his boxing skill, White could not get over the punch and had been more aggressive would have scored an undisputed victory. Welsh is a superbly clever boxer and a shrewd, tricky ringster. White is known for his punching ability with the educated, lumbering left hook, and not for his boxing skill. White could not get over the punch and had been more aggressive would have scored an undisputed victory. Welsh is a superbly clever boxer and a shrewd, tricky ringster. White is known for his punching ability with the educated, lumbering left hook, and not for his boxing skill.

Welsh has adopted a "back to nature" system of training, going to the California woods for a dose of the simple life in hopes of regaining his skill. He announced that he will box again in the fall for $15,000 at Denver for twenty rounds with a decision attached to the bout.

Another surprising bout during the past week was the showing of Saylor against White at Boston in twelve rounds. From all reports White was extremely lucky in getting a draw decision with the Indianapolis lightweight and fought rather a poor battle. Saylor is coming to the front rapidly and his greatest credit was an aged victory over Welsh two and a half years ago, but the referee called a knockout of Welsh's a foul. Saylor easily evaded White's left hook by aggressiveness and kept the Chicago champion dodging stiff punches and the most of them he did not dodge.

Hot weather has put a decided crimp into the boxing sport and during the next two months good bouts will be few and far between. The best that has been booked so far is a ten-round mill between Johnny Dundee and Jack Britton. Both of these sterling lightweights are championship contenders and for some time Britton has not been able to get a match, the others shunning him. Both belong to the "Whipped-White" class and while there may be others in the today lightweight class as good, there are no better. Probably no better fighter exists today than Jack Britton and the reason he is not known is because he has not had much chance to prove himself. In Dundee, he will meet the shiftest fighter he ever faced with a punch superior.

Frank Farmer, a Wisconsin middleweight, has been fought to the front fast during the last two months and recently put up ten good rounds with Jimmy Clabby who "once" laid claims to the title until these selfsame claims were knocked loose from him by Gibbons. Although Farmer is a beginner in the ring, without much cleverness, he has scored knock-out over a formidable list of boxers, many heavier than him. Paper reports from Oshkosh also give him a draw with Clabby and it appears it made the Hammond man busy in the last three rounds of the bout to escape this haymaker. With another season's experience under his belt, he will undoubtedly jump farther up in the ranks.

Nebaska is celebrating the victory of Joe Stecher, a native son, over Charles Cutler, on the mat for the championship of the world, since Clabby has retired. Stecher has convinced the mat fans, what few that are left, that it was no lucky victory over Cutler and those who have witnessed the young giant work, declare he will beat Cutler if they ever meet. The Iowa man may never wrestle again and so this claim possibly may never be tested out. There is no doubt that the Gotch of today is not the Gotch of yesterday, but he is still strong and crafty and would be easily the master of Cutler.

Stecher's victory over the Chicago wrestler was so clean, and so complete, winning two straight falls, in eighteen and ten minutes, that Cutler could give no alibi had he wished. The Nebraska wonder has perfected the scissors hold own to a fine point and won with his skill.

Six managers of the American League accuse Connie Mack of a breach of neutrality. He said Comiskey a forty-two-centimeter gun.

Chas. Somers arises to remark that the White Sox must be stopped, but Charley's team can hardly make them hesitate.

Fred Toney deserves a prominent place in the archives of baseball. He has won three games in a row in spite of the fact that he is pitching for the Reds.

Time puts over the knockout wallop on all of them, if they stick long enough. Some day you will see this time in the box score. "Batted for Cobb in the ninth inning."

Heine Zim was accused of having the artistic temperament. "Nix," he said. "Nix!" The only disease I ever had was the measles.

The Brookfields have unconditionally released Danny Murphy. He was a charter member of the well known Job-for-life club, organized by Messrs. Ward and Weeghman during the jumping days.

In training your eyes over the baseball firmament, can anybody discover a more hopeless failure than Connie Mack's All? He has done has been to bring six pennants and three world championships to Philadelphia since 1902.

When Wilford Osborn was benched by Manager Midkiff of the Louisville Colonels the other day because of weak hitting, it was the first time in three years, it is said, that he has missed playing a game.

Rusty Lathrop, obtained by Kansas City as a pitcher, has shown such hitting ability that Danny Shay is playing him in the outfield regularly these days.

Wilbur Smith, former catcher for the Minneapolis Millers, who retired and went into the automobile business, has found that line as risky as blocking them off at the plate. He tangled up with a bucking auto recently in Minneapolis and is now laid up with a broke arm as a result.

President Tebeau started something when he released John Titus and Lefty George, who claim long-term contracts that are ironclad and have sued to compel Tebeau to live up to them. The defense of the Kansas City club is that the players did not deliver as required under the contracts, and reports indicate that the whole American Association welcomes the tests that will be made. The surprising thing is that the Federals have not jumped in and offered to take the two players in out of the wet.

Some Corroboration.
The theory of an eminent scientist is that the human family is descended from bullfrogs, and it seems to be supported by the fact that some men are known to be incessant croakers.

CHANCE DREW ONLY $1,200 FIRST SEASON.

Frank Chance, manager of the former world champion Cubs, passed through all stages of baseball in the salary line during his long career on the diamond. Chance went from California to the Cubs in 1898. His contract, called for $1,200 a salary few players would consider nowadays. He was advanced to $1,500 his second year, and so on until he reached the $10,000 mark.

Chance quit the Cubs to manage the New York Yankees. He is reported to have received $25,000 for shouldering the Gotham burden. If this is true, Chance had the distinction of receiving the biggest salary in baseball.

TELLS PLAIN TRUTH.

By their opposition to the plans of the governor for economy in state affairs, the great army of state officeholders are working their own destruction. The big appropriation bills have not yet come to the governor for his signature and he informed the members of the State Bankers' association that when they did the assembly would sustain his veto. By this it is taken to mean that as far as he is able the governor means to reduce the taxation problem of the state to a minimum if possible.

This "tax-cutting" combination at Madison is something appalling. They seek to save their own precious little jobs at the expense of the state taxpayers. One professor of the state university stated Wednesday in Madison: "Why this furor against the university, this consolidation educational measure has done the university untold damage. Do you know that we can not hire a single professor from another institution with the uncertainty hanging over us?"

He did not like the reference to the truth that even before the last election was certain, one of the present members of the state senate was pledged by a measure which affected the university. He did not like the tale that less than a week ago this same senator sought to be released from his pledge, feeling that the administration measure was what the taxpayers desired and that this senator refused until he saw President Van Hise.

In fact he was brought to Madison by automobile and still refused to release the senate until he saw Van Hise, and Van Hise refused to permit the release. It is just such political interference in state affairs that the taxpayers of the state object to on the part of university officials. It is just such interference along with lobbying of the educational and liquor interests that is defeating the efforts of the governor to bring about perfection of his tax-reduction schemes.

In fact this opposition to the wishes of the people on the part of the army of state officeholders who fear to lose their jobs. The insidious working of the university lobby. The manipulations of the normal regents and the ultra La Follette senators and their converts have made one thing possible. That is the restoration in complete of the state government to people at the next general election. The defeat of Robert M. La Follette for United States senator, the defeat of the ultra progressive delegates to the national republican convention and the election of a legislature that will fulfill its pledges of economy and not be swayed by any lobby.

The governor intimates that he may veto appropriation bills that he does not deem necessary. This is his right and that he will exert it is certain. He is a governor without fear, assured of the fact that except for the hostile press of the state, he is following out his campaign pledges and the wishes of the people. He is within his right and it is to be trusted he will exercise his prerogative to the full extent that the taxpayers may benefit.

MENACING COMBINATION.

Thoughtful legislators of both parties are anxious to see the southern cotton growers and the grain growers of the west, the latter largely inspired by Mr. Bryan, form a combination in the approaching congress and seek to compel the imposition of an embargo on arms and ammunition for the allied nations of Europe. The cotton growers are growingly incensed—and without reason—at the course of Great Britain in holding up all cargoes of cotton consigned to Germany. It is true that the market price for the cotton she confiscates, but it is equally true that the market price is considerably lower than it would be were both English and German buyers free to compete against each other. So far as the grain growers are concerned, they are greatly benefiting by the war and the prices of their products are materially enhanced. But the fear is expressed that they will be so far misled by William J. Bryan that they will join in the so-called peace movement which would, in effect, have the result of aligning the agricultural states of the south and west against the industrial states of the east. Of course the effect on such an embargo would be disastrous alike to such small measure of prosperity as this country now enjoys and to the hopes of the democratic party. All who are familiar with economic conditions realize that it is the orders of allied belligerents alone which are saving the country from the direct effects of the embargo and that were there an embargo on the exportation of arms and ammunition panic conditions would prevail. It may, of course, be argued that it is necessary for the United States to profit by the sale of munitions of war, but it is also practical to realize that without war orders the fathers of families would be walking the streets begging for work and women and children would be starving because natural providers could not find employment.

There are always harbingers of ill tidings. Persons who delight in whispering tales of neighbors and supposed friends to belittle them in the eyes of others. This has been true ever since the serpent crept into the Garden of Eden and these scandal-mongers take on the form and appearance of the serpent before long, in the minds of the general public.

Senator Ackley, the mischievous Puck of the senate, has a resolution on tap to limit the sessions of future legislatures to a hundred days with a fine upon members for all days that it lasts longer. The obstructionists do not see the joke of the idea.

The man who has watched his garden fail to grow is now startled at the way in which weeds have sprung up over night and can not understand just why nature appears to work in a circle rather than along circumscribed lines.

According to the testimony of one of the witnesses before the open sessions of the state senate there is not a state employee who could be displaced without serious inconvenience to the whole system. Such egotism.

Hanson's resolution that after their hard and arduous duties of the past few months the state board of health could be granted a vacation, met with cold disdain from the senators, but just the same it was a true statement.

July really begins to feel natural only the change from the drizzle of spring is so sudden that it is surprising to say the least.

DONEGAL FURNISHES SMALLEST NUMBER OF BRITISH RECRUITS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Dublin, July 16.—Donegal has the unpleasant prominence of being the county in the British Isles which up to the present time has returned the smallest proportion of recruits. MISS PEMBER WEDS DR. FRANKLIN NUZUM

NUPTIALS SOLEMNIZED AT EIGHT O'CLOCK LAST EVENING AT TRINITY CHURCH.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Reverend Henry Willmann Read Episcopal Service in Presence of Several Hundred Guests.

An occasion long to be remembered by the witnesses was the marriage of Miss Constance Pember to Dr. Franklin Richards Nuzum, which was solemnized at Trinity church last evening. Promptly at eight o'clock the bridal party entered the church, preceded by the Boys' Choir of Trinity, which sang, "The Voice That Breathed Over Eden." Mrs. J. F. Sweeney at the organ.

The boys took their places in the choir; the organist began the wedding march from Schengrin and the groom, attended by Dr. Ralph Hartman of Newton, Kansas, entered from the vestry to await the bride. The Misses Elsie Fife and Mary Langdon stretched the ribbons. The ushers were Aubrey H. Pember, brother of the bride; Dr. John Nuzum, brother of the groom; and Dr. George Coleman, all of Chicago, and Thomas Spodgrass of Minneapolis. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary MacLennan of Topeka, Kansas; Miss Florence Nuzum, sister of the groom; and Miss Adelaide Evans, maid of honor. The bride followed on her father's arm.

The service of the Episcopal church was impressively employed by the Rev. Henry Willmann, rector of Trinity. The choir sang "O Perfect Love," the benediction was pronounced, and the bridal party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn March, followed by their friends and repaired to the spacious home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Pember, 103 Jackson street, where a reception was held, and refreshments were served and a few joyous hours were passed before the bride and groom left for a short automobile trip followed by a month's sojourn at Lake Kegonsa.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Pember was tastefully decorated with baskets of flowers, white and pink roses and daisies being used in abundance. The church was decorated with white flowers and green foliage.

The bridesmaid's gowns were white lace trimmed with pink satin, and they wore white veils fastened with wreaths of tiny pink buds. They carried baskets of pink roses and daisies.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin draped with princess lace and satin train. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms, and bouquet was of white roses and daisies.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of gold and silver lace over violet chiffon with train of turquoise satin. The groom's mother wore pale green embroidered chiffon and a white silk with train of pale green satin.

The bride is the only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Pember, and has grown to womanhood in Janesville, her native town. She has always been a favorite among her many friends and her unfailing kindness to those in trouble has made her a prominent factor of her fine character.

The groom is the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Nuzum and is a practitioner of medicine in Chicago. He is a graduate of Wisconsin high school, the University of Wisconsin and Rush Medical College, and has already achieved an enviable position in his chosen work.

The happy couple received many testimonials of regard in the form of beautiful gifts from their many friends and best wishes for their future home in Chicago.

There were many out of town guests at the wedding. CLEMENT SIMMONS AGAIN BEFORE MUNICIPAL COURT

"You think that by pleading guilty and getting your case adjourned, you will escape your just dues, but this adjournment game is not going to get you any more," said Judge Lathfield when Clement Simmons, a young man of this city, was arraigned in the court this morning for intoxication.

Simmons pleaded not guilty to the complaint and thereupon the court proceeded to impose upon Simmons a lecture that was equal to a sentence under the commitment law in punishment.

Simmons was brought before the court following trouble with his employer, who the prisoner alleged "beat him up" in a dispute over a wage settlement. The case was adjourned for one week and Simmons was released in the custody of the employer, whom he said was the cause of the trouble.

CHAPTER VII.

Still Fleeting Out the World.

The map of the United States in Edward E. Allison's library began, now, to develop little streaks, but they were boldly marked, and they hugged, with extraordinary closeness, the pencil mark which Allison had drawn from New York to Chicago and from Chicago to San Francisco. There were long gaps between them, but these did not seem to worry him very much. It was the little streaks, sometimes scarcely over an inch, which he drew with such evident pleasure from day to day, and now, occasionally, as he passed in and out, he stopped by the big globe and gave it a contemplative whirl. On the day he joined his far western group of little marks by bridging three small gaps, he received a caller in the person of a short, well-dressed old man, who walked with a cane and looked half asleep, by reason of the many yawns which had piled up under his eyes and nearly closed them.

"I'm ready to wind up, Tim," remarked Allison, offering his caller a cigar, and lighting one himself. "When can we have that Vedder Court property condemned?"

"Whenever you give the word," reported Tim Corman, who spoke with an asthmatic voice, and with the quiet dignity of a man who had borne grave business responsibilities, and had borne them well.

Allison nodded his head in satisfaction.

"You're sure there can't be any hitch in it?"

"Not if I say it's all right," and the words were Tim's only reproof. His tone was perfectly level, and there was no glint in his eyes. Offended dignity had nothing to do with business. "Give me one week's notice, and the Vedder Court property will be condemned for the city terminal of the Municipal Transportation company. Appraisal, thirty-one million."

"I only wanted to be reassured," apologized Allison. "I took your word that you could swing it when I made my own gamble, but now I have to drag other people into it."

"That's right," agreed Tim. "I never get offended over straight business." In other times Tim Corman could have said "get sore," but, as he had the end of his years of useful activity, he was making quite a specialty of refinement, and stocking a picture gallery, and becoming a con-collector of rare old jewels. He crossed three times a day.

"How about the Crescent Island sub-

"Any time," and Tim Corman checked the ashes from his cigar with a heavily gloved hand. "The boosters have been working on it right along, but never too strong."

"There's no need for any particular manipulation in that," decided Allison, who knew the traction situation to the last nickel. "The city needs that outlet, and it needs the new territory which will be opened up. I think we'd better push the subway right on across to the mainland. The extension would have to be made in ten years anyhow."

"It's better right now," immediately assented Corman. In ten years he might be dead.

"I think, too, that we'd better provide for a heavy future expansion," went on Allison, glancing expectantly into Tim's old eyes. "We'd probably better provide for a double-deck, eight-track tube."

Tim Corman drew a wheezy breath, and then he grinned the senile shadow of his old-time grin; but it still had the same spirit.

"You got a hen on," he decided. In "society," Tim could manage very nicely to use fashionable language, but in business he found it impossible after the third or fourth minute of conversation. He had taken in every detail of the room on his entrance, and his glance had strayed more than once to the red streaks on the big map. Now he approached it, and studied it with absorbed interest.

"You're a smart boy, Ed," he concluded. "Across Crescent Island is the only leak you could make in a railroad. You found the only crack that the big systems haven't tied up."

"All you can get me to admit, just now, is that the city needs an eight-track tube across Crescent Island, under lease to the Municipal Transportation company," stated Allison, smiling with gratification. A compliment of this sort from shrewd old Tim Corman, who was reputed to be the foxiest man in the world, was a tribute highly flattering.

"That's right," approved Tim. "All I know is a guess, and I don't tell guesses. This is a big job, though, Eddie. A subway to Crescent Island, under proper restrictions, is just an ordinary year's work for the boys, but this tube pokes its nose into Oakland bay."

"I'm quite aware of the size of the job," chuckled Allison. "However, Tim, there'll be money enough behind this proposition to fill that tube with greenbacks."

Between the narrow-slitted and puffy eyelids of Tim Corman there gleamed a trace of the old-time grin. "Then it's built," he rose, and leaned on his cane, twinkling down on the man whom, years before, he had poked as a "comer." "I've heard people say that money's wicked, but they never had any. When I die, and go down to the big ferry, if the Old Boy comes along and offers me enough money, I'll go to hell."

Still laughing, Allison telephoned to the offices of the Midcontinent railroad, and dashed out to his runabout just in time to see Tim Corman driving around the corner in his liveried landau. He found in President Urbank of the Midcontinent, a spare man who had worn three vertical creases in his brow over one thwarted ambition. His rich but sprawling railroad system ran fairly straight after it was well started, for Chicago, and fairly straight from that point until it became drunken with the monotony of the western foothills, where it gangled and angled its way to the far south and around up the Pacific coast, arriving there dusty and rattling, after a thousand-mile detour from its course—but that road had no direct entrance into New York city. It approached from the north, and was compelled to circle completely around, over hired tracks, to gain a ferryboat entrance. Passengers laured to coming in over the Midcontinent, which was a well-equipped road otherwise, counted but half their journey done when they came in sight of New York, no matter from what distance they had come.

"Out marketing for railroads today, Gill?" suggested Allison.

"I don't know," smiled Urbank. "I might look at a few."

"Here they are," and Allison tossed him a memorandum slip.

Urbank glanced at the slip, then he looked up at Allison in perplexity. He had a funny forward angle to his neck when he was interested, and the creases in his brow were deepened until they looked like cuts.

"I thought you were joking, and I'm still charitable enough to think so. What's all this junk?"

"Little remnants and job lots of railroads I've been picking up," and Allison drew forward his chair. "Some I bought outright, and in some I hold control."

"If you're serious about interesting the Midcontinent in any of this property, we don't need to waste much time," Urbank leaned back and held his knee. "There are only two of these roads approach the Midcontinent system at any point, and they are 'useless' property so far as we are concerned; the L. and C. in the east, and the Silverknob and Nugget City. In the west, which touches our White Range branch at its southern terminus. We couldn't do anything with those."

"You landed on the best ones right away," smiled Allison. "However, I don't propose to sell those to the Midcontinent. I propose to absorb the Midcontinent with them."

Urbank suddenly remembered Allison's traction history, and leaned forward to look at the job lots and remnants again.

"This list isn't complete," he judged, and turned to Allison with a serious question in his eye.

"Almost," and Allison hitched a little closer to the desk. "There remains an aggregate of three hundred and twenty miles of road to be built in four short stretches. In addition to this, I have a twenty-year contract over a hundred-mile stretch of the Inland Pacific, a track right entry into San Francisco, and this," he displayed to Urbank a preliminary copy of an ordinance, authorizing the immediate building of an eight-track tube through Crescent Island to the mainland. "Possibly you can understand this whole project better if I show you a map."

He spread out his little pocket sketch.

If it had been possible to reverse the process of time and worry and banking of the Midcontinent would have risen from his inspection of that map with a brow as smooth as a baby's. Instead, his lips went dry, as he craned forward his neck at that funny angle, and projected his chin with the foolish motion of a goose.

"A direct entrance right slam into the center of New York!" he exclaimed, cracking all his knuckles violently one by one. "Vedder court! Where's that?"

"That's the best part of the joke," exulted Allison, with no thought that Vedder court was, at this present moment, church property. "It's just where you said—right slam in the center of New York; and the building into which the Midcontinent will run its trains will be also the terminal building of every municipal transportation line in Manhattan! From my station platforms passengers from Chicago or the far West will step directly into subway, L., or trolley. When they come in over the line which is now the Midcontinent, they will be landed, not across the river, or in some side street, but right at their own doors, scattering from the Midcontinent terminal over a hundred traction lines!" His voice, which had begun in the mild banter of a man passing an idle joke, had risen to a ring so triumphant that he was almost shouting.

"But—but—wait a minute!" Urbank protested. He was stuttering. "Where does the Midcontinent get to the Crescent Island tube?"

"Right here," and Allison pointed to his map. "You come out of the tube to the L. and C., which has a long-time tracking privilege, over fifty miles of the Towanda Valley, and terminates at Windfield. At Forgeson, however, just ten miles after the L. and C. leaves the Towanda, that road—"

"Is crossed by our tracks!" Urbank eagerly interpreted. "The Midcontinent, after its direct exit, saves a seventy-mile detour! Then it's a straight shoot for Chicago! Straight on again out west—Why, Allison, your route is almost as straight as an arrow! It will have a three-hundred-mile shorter haul than even the Inland Pacific! You'll put that road out of the business! You'll have the king of transcontinental lines, and none can ever be built that will save one kink!"

His neck protruded still further from his collar as he bent over the map. "Here you split off from the Midcontinent's main line and utilize the White Range branch; from Silverknob—My God!" and his mouth dropped open.

"Why—why—why, you cross the big range over the Inland Pacific's own tracks!" and his voice cracked.

Edward E. Allison, his vanity gratified to its very core, sat back comfortably, smiling and smoking, until Urbank awoke.

"I suppose we can come to some arrangement," he mildly suggested.

Urbank looked at him still in a daze for a moment, and a trace of the creases came back into his brow, then they faded away.

"You figured all this out before you came to me," he remarked. "On what terms do we get it?"

CHAPTER VIII.

The Mine for the Golden Altar. Vedder Court was a very drunkard among tenement groups. Its decrepit, old wooden buildings, as it weak-kneed from dissipation and senile decay, leaped against each other crooked for support, and teered down at the sodden swarms beneath, out of broken-paned windows which gave somehow a ludicrous effect of bearded eyes. There had once been a narrow strip of curbed soil in the center of the street, where three long-since-departed trees had given the quarter its name of "court," but this space was now as bare and dry as the asphalt surrounding it, and, as it was too small even for the purpose of children at play, a wooden bench, upon which no one had ever sat, as, indeed, why should they? had long ago been placed on it, to become loose-jointed and weather-splintered and rotted, like all the rest of the neighborhood.

As for its tenants, they were exactly the sort of birds one might expect to find in such foul nests. They were of many nations, but of just two main varieties: stupid and squalid, or thin and furtive; but they were all dirty, and they bore, in their complexions, the poison of crowded breathing spaces, and bad sewerage, and unwholesome or insufficient food.

Into this mire there drove an utterly out-of-place little electric coupe. At the wheel was the fresh-cheeked Gail Sargent and with her was the twinkling-eyed Rufus Manning, whose white beard rippled down to his second waistcoat button. They drove slowly the length of the court and back again, the girl studying every detail with acute interest. They stopped in front of Temple Mission, which, with its ugly red and blue lettering nearly erased by years of monthly scrubbing, occupied an old store room once used as a saloon.

"So this is the chrysalis from which the butterfly cathedral is to emerge," commented Gail, as Manning held the door open for her, and before she rose she peered again around the unwhitewashed "court," which not even the bright winter sunshine could relieve of its dinginess; rather, the sun made it only the more dismal by presenting the ugliness more in detail.

"This is the mine which produces the gold which is to gild the altar," asserted Manning, studying the sidewalk. "I don't think you'd better come in here. You'll spoil your shoes."

He called the old familiar waiter over to him.

"Where's my honey?" he demanded. "The waiter hesitated, looked awkwardly at the bride, and then bent toward the young man's ear and in a hoarse whisper stammered, 'Why, May's don't work here any more, sir.'"

"My wife made me a success," remarked the man.

"I'm glad to hear you say that," declared his pastor.

"Yes, she has always wanted so many things that I've just had to hustle."

STOMACH VICTIM PUT BACK ON JOB

Milwaukee Man Finds Quick Way to Escape Misery of Digestive Troubles.

William A. Ernst of 1184 Richards street, Milwaukee, was a victim of stomach disorders which made him miserable most of the time. He was often unable to work and he suffered severely.

Mr. Ernst finally took May's Wonderful Remedy and was surprised at the quick results. He wrote:

"Your medicine has relieved me of about three hundred accretions and I have not passed any more since taking the last dose. I have not lost an hour of work since. I have recommended your wonderful remedy to several of my friends and will recommend it to all who suffer as I did."

May's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach, and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee. If not satisfactory money will be returned.

LUBLIN DESCRIBED AS A WAR CENTER

Geographic Society Tells of Russian Poland City—Historic Spot.

The Russian government of Lublin, where the onward rush of Teutonic invasion was first arrested by the Muscovites, is described in a statement issued today by the National Geographic Society.

The region where the Austro-German campaign in southern Poland by the first determined Russian stand of the nature of an elevated plateau, surrounded here and there deeply by rivers and heavily wooded, with forests of oak, beech and pine. The land is severely torn, a complex of hills and ravine. Over much of its area it is thinly populated, and presents stretches of open, trackless forest and thicket. There is plenty of natural cover for armies operating there.

Lublin is the southeasternmost point of the Russian Poland. It is situated east and west, between the Bug and Vistula. The river Bug divides Lublin from the Russian government of Volhynia, while the Vistula divides it from the Russian Poland government of Galicia. The city is situated on the right bank of the Vistula river, near the mouth of the Bug.

Thus, the war reports that the Russian government of Poland, in the north, is looking forward to the abandonment of almost all of Russian Poland. The Bug river flows in a wide arc to the north and then turns westward, joining the Vistula river near the mouth of the Bug. The powerful Russian fortress, Novo-Gorod, about forty miles north of Lublin, is the Polish metropolis. The city is situated on the right bank of the Vistula river, near the mouth of the Bug.

Heavy, black earth, of rich fertility, is found in parts of the government, and this is mostly under cultivation. Rye, oats, wheat, barley and potatoes are the principal crops. A good deal of the Lublin grain harvest is exported. Flax, hemp and beet root are cultivated on the larger estates, and stock raising is carried on. The sugar beets are worked for their product. In mills within the government, spirits, flour, leather, and lumber are other of its manufactured products. There are several horsefarms in the district, whose animals have a European reputation. The character of the government is distinctly agricultural; there are few cities and very little railway traffic, especially in the south and central parts.

"At one time, German immigration threatened to over-run this region, the Teutonic settlers being attracted by the rich, promising soils, and the great consumers' markets easily reached from Lublin. In 1887, however, this immigration was effectively checked by the adoption of a new method in this part of Russian Poland for the cultivation of the soil. The roads running north are of indifferent quality, and taken together with the almost entire lack of railway facilities, the maneuvering of armies through this territory must be surrounded with considerable effort and difficulty."

STRIKE WHISKY OFF THE DRUG LISTS NOW

No Nip to Be Obtained at the Corner Drug Store in the Future Is the Plan.

Persons who have been in the habit of obtaining their daily nip behind the prescription case of the corner drug store, are bound to have trouble in the future. The present plan for the future is to carry on in temperance districts this will be a real hardship to many temperance devotees.

The Blind Pig.

The drug store "blind pig" is doomed. No "blind pig" harbored by any drug store is now so bereft of vision that he will not be able to see clearly after January 1, 1916, that the game is up.

Sight is to be restored to the drug store "blind pig" by a major operation performed by the foremost physicians of the United States, constituting the National Pharmacopoeia committee. The operation which already has been carried out in temperance districts this will be a real hardship to many temperance devotees.

Must Pay Local License.

After that time it will be necessary for the drug store to pay a local license. The drug store is now so bereft of vision that he will not be able to see clearly after January 1, 1916, that the game is up.

EDISON MAKES DYE FOR TEXTILE MILLS

Inventor in Letter to Kenosha Hosiery Works Says He Has Aniline Dye Superior to German Product.

Kenosha, July 16.—Thomas A. Edison has just sent a letter to the hosiery works at Kenosha in which he states that he has managed to make an aniline dye which will be the equal if not the superior of the dye produced in Germany. It soon will be commercially offered to the textile plants of the United States.

The invention promises to save many textile plants in the United States from commercial ruin. For years practically all the aniline dyes used in America have been imported from Germany, and Edison's invention will enable the manufacturers to continue using processes to change which would cost vast sums.

Plant Sought Aid.

The Kenosha hosiery plant, the largest of the kind in the world, was one of the first to avail itself of the genius of Edison in meeting the problem. Ten days ago Roger Kimball, general superintendent of the plant, went to West Orange to see Edison. Edison started in making an aniline dye which would cost less than the German dye.

Kimball yesterday, "but to demonstrate to the world that if Germany and Germany could make an aniline dye, America and Americans could." The Kenosha hosiery plant, the largest of the kind in the world, was one of the first to avail itself of the genius of Edison in meeting the problem.

ROAD DRAG AND GRADER NECESSARY IMPLEMENTS IN MAINTAINING HIGHWAYS

The traffic on earth and gravel roads has a constant tendency to develop ruts, chuck holes and depressions. The chief aim of road maintenance is to prevent and remedy this destructive action. To be successful and efficient, road maintenance must be systematic and continuous. Haphazard work is expensive and unsatisfactory.

If the road is very rough and uneven or the crown very low the road should be graded. The most efficient way for placing it in shape. One method, however, against the all too common practice of scraping the soil and other venerable matter and retarding the road is to use a road grader. The road grader is a machine which is used for grading the road. It is a machine which is used for grading the road.

NEW LAW HITS AT

The surface of a road, covered with a surface of water, and densely packed soil. This layer is as nearly impervious to water as it is possible to make it. Following rains find little or no place for movement of the water. The water is forced to the surface, and the surface is forced to the surface.

PRINCE SCHERBATOFF SPEAKS TO EDITORS ON WAR CENSORSHIP

Petrograd, July 16.—Prince Scherbatoff, the new Minister of the Interior in a recent speech to a gathering of newspapermen who were invited to the Home Office, said that he believed in a free press, even in war-time, and declared that he purposed to ask representatives of the War Office, the Admiralty and the Ministry of the Interior to discuss the whole question with the leading newspaper editors, in an effort to reach a more satisfactory arrangement than at present.

REACH COMPROMISE ON SCHOOL BOARD PLAN FOR COUNTIES

Measure Which 'Emancipates' Present System Ordered Engrailed by Senate Late Yesterday.

REACH COMPROMISE ON SCHOOL BOARD PLAN FOR COUNTIES

Madison, Wis., July 16.—A compromise on the county board of education bills satisfactory to nearly all concerned was reached by the senate late Thursday when the Burke bill, No. 13, as amended, was passed. The original bill repealed the law entirely. The demand for its repeal became so strong that the senate passed a bill which would create a conference committee, and following a conference yesterday by parties interested in both sides, the bill is now considered stronger than the old law. It preserves the principle of the 1913 enactment.

The bill approved by the senate replaces the county board of education as at present constituted by a committee of the common schools, to be composed of three members, appointed by the county board of supervisors. Under the present law the members of the county board of education are elected by the people. The new committee shall have power to appoint supervisory teachers for the county schools, as a means of bringing advanced methods of instruction into the life of these schools. The county superintendent must report to this committee. The committee shall have power to direct the county superintendent to provide funds for paying a clerk for the county superintendent. These provisions are believed by Prof. C. E. Patzer, the leading expert on school matters, to strengthen the bill and to provide a stimulus for better educational facilities for rural communities.

The senate first disposed of the first fifteen amendments to the bill. The sixteenth, embodying the changes agreed upon by the senate in committee of the whole, was adopted. Then, after defeating a motion to amend amendments offered by Senator Bray, the senate adopted substitute amendment No. 2, and the bill thus amended was sent to the finance committee.

This bill was one of the most stubbornly contested of any measure offered in the upper house. Members of the senate education committee said on the floor they had given up of twenty hearings on it. Large delegations of school superintendents and other educators appeared in support of the repeal measure. The friends of the repeal measure were backed by county boards, whose powers were taken from them by the county boards of education. The repeal measure was one of the most stubbornly contested of any measure offered in the upper house.

HAMBURG ANIMAL PARK GROWS IN WAR TIMES

In its weekly report on general conditions in Germany during the European war the American Association of Commerce and Trade, Berlin, publishes the following: "A recent visit to Hagenbeck's animal park in Hamburg, discloses the fact that, contrary to other reports in the beligerent press, the park has actually increased in the number of animals. It seems that the false reports of lack of fodder which had been spread to have led to the dissolution of the park, originated with the same 'Erewhens' who reported famine, revolution and other pleasant things in Germany."

The animals in the park appear to be well fed. They are in good form, having passed the winter very well. In view of the prevailing difficulty in obtaining grain, such as wheat, corn, oats, barley, etc., for feeding purposes during the winter, some inconvenience was experienced in the beginning, but Hagenbeck solved the problem in a simple manner.

For instance, water birds and cranes which principally were fed with grain formerly received a substitute, containing boiled potatoes, boiled fish and ground bones. Ospreys are fed with chopped herring and cod fish, a fodder which has proved to be of excellent nourishing quality, as is shown by the uninterrupted breeding.

Antelopes, stags, rhinoceroses and giraffes have forgotten the looks of oats and corn because the substitute of cut beets, carrots, chestnuts, potatoes and a small ration of bran has found much favor.

"Lions, tigers, leopards and other members of the cat family receive as their daily ration of raw meat or bullcock's head. Polar bears and brown bears were fed formerly with bread, as in 1913, for instance, 135,000 pounds were required. The following are kept now in the park: Thirty-eight lions, 23 tigers, 4 leopards, 3 jaguars, 1 cheetah (hunting leopard), 1 snow leopard, 12 spotted hyenas, 19 polar bears, 5 brown bears, 6 other bears and 3 silver lions."

The Fever of Sin

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Assistant to the Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever. And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: and she arose, and ministered unto them.—Matthew 8:14, 15.

Peter's house was in Capernaum. He was a native of Bethsaida, but may have changed his residence to suit Christ's ministry the better! It was in this house at Capernaum that his wife's mother lay sick, as the text records. Her fever and its cure suggests the fever of sin and Christ's dealing with it.

Sickness. Fever brings heat. Lust or drink becomes a fire in the blood, and the fever of covetousness is no less consuming. Men seem sometimes to be in a delirium of rage against the Gospel and the martyrs have been stricken down by men who were in a passion for no other reason save that these preached Christ.

Fever brings restlessness. Sin does not satisfy and the wicked are like the troubled sea, which cannot rest. Like the rough sea, that cannot rest, You live, devoid of peace; A thousand stings within your breast Deprive your soul of ease.

A young man of wealth once went to Dr. Forbes Winslow, seeking relief for a peculiar mental distress. This distinguished physician could find no malady which medicines could reach, and at last obtained from the young man a confession that his trouble came from the fact that he was haunted, in the midst of luxury, with this question, "Where shall I spend eternity?"

Fever is attended by thirst. Christ appealed to a weary world when he cried, "If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink." Only those who have tried the broken cisterns of earth can sing with full appreciation that line in the old hymn, "Jesus hath satisfied, Jesus is mine."

Soundness. As the first step towards the cure, "Jesus came into Peter's house." We should the good news that he is not far from any of us. Many testify to the reality of divine power in their lives, and Charles Spurgeon declared that for many years he was never for fifteen minutes without the conscious presence of Christ.

Then there came actual contact with the sick woman: "He touched her hand." How wonderfully it illustrates the fact that he bore our sicknesses, taking hold of the seed of Abraham. He is not an absentee God, but a present Helper, laying his hand upon our corruption for its cleansing. The rabbi had a saying that when Messiah should come he would be found among the lepers at the gate, for he would come to bless and save. Luke adds another line to the picture, saying, "He stood over her and rebuked the fever." His voice is still mighty. We think of the multitudes who waited on the ministry of Charles Spurgeon and found the word of God, as he spoke it, quick and powerful. And we should recall that all the fruitfulness of Spurgeon's life came out of the fact that he once heard a plain man cry out this invitation of God, "Look unto me and be ye saved;" these simple words contained some of the power which rebuked the woman's fever and, on another occasion, brought Lazarus from the tomb.

"The fever left her." Multitudes who have had a worse malady, even the fever of sin, have been as promptly and fully delivered. Service followed the healing immediately, for the woman "arose and ministered unto them." How wonderful that to us is still given the privilege of ministering to our Lord! All life becomes sacred when it is a service unto him. "Whatever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord, and not unto men: knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance; for ye serve the Lord Christ."

A Double Promise. Many, pressed down to despair by sin, have heard the word of Christ, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." St. Augustine, for example, was once far from being a saint. He had plunged into the sins of a great city and wasted his substance in riotous living. But upon his fever-laden soul the finger of Christ was laid, and instantly the fever left him. Shortly after his conversion an evil woman, his mistress, passed him in the street. She cried after him, "It is I, Augustine." "But it is not I," he answered. He had been made whole and was a new man in Christ Jesus.

But the invitation of Christ reaches farther. "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

At the earliest moment possible after its coronation, the young monarch made a pious pilgrimage up the steep steps of Gilead. With what emotion must have gazed at those certain walls that had once stood beneath the shadow of the "mount that shook!" What associations crowded his memory as he laid his head upon the altar of Bethel, and he had been crowned king? He had been crowned king? He had been crowned king?

sure! Hidden yeast, truly! But the boughs of that tree already touch the rim of the world! The whole human mass is leavened. Yet the extensive growth of Christianity is not so good an evidence of its divinity as its intensive growth. The best argument is not a statistical table, but a human life. A rabbi said of a Methodist bishop just deceased: "The religion that can produce such a character does not need to resort to argument to show what it stands for."

POLICE PROBE WILD ACCOUNT OF MASKED THIEF TOLD BY GIRL

Miss Elsie Sandrom Declares Burglar With Black Mask Entered Wolff Home Thursday Afternoon.

Police investigation of the sensational account of a black-masked highwayman entering and robbing Miss Elsie Sandrom, age 25 years, at the William Wolff residence, 1015 Ruger avenue, yesterday afternoon, failed to bring out sufficient proof in the minds of the officers of the account given was true. In fact, the police formed a theory that the story told was out of the question and a different solution was offered by the department. Chief Champion questioned several persons this morning and when asked about the case said: "There is nothing to tell for there is nothing to it."

Miss Elsie Sandrom, however, is most sincere in the account of a thief entering the Wolff residence at 1015 Ruger avenue late yesterday afternoon, binding her to a chair, threatening her with a revolver while she was in the house. It was told by the young lady that she had been employed at the Wolff home for over a week. Yesterday about three o'clock, called by the name of Adrian Cookson, relative of Mrs. Wolff, visited the house and on leaving did not close the front door tightly.

"As I was coming out of the back room, I looked up and standing near the door of the front room was a burly man, wearing a black mask that covered his eyes and most of his face," said Miss Sandrom.

After demanding money it was related the masked man went to the rear of the house, secured a portion of a clothes line and secured the young woman to a small push chair that was in the sitting room. Miss Sandrom declares that the man bound her to the chair and tied the rope around the chair so that she could not move.

While the man was going through the drawers of the desk near where the girl said she was tied, she struggled to release herself from the ropes. The highwayman, the girl said, turned and pointed a revolver in her face, threatening death if she made an outcry or moved. The erstwhile thief was alleged to have threatened to put a towel over the girl's mouth, but did not do so on her pleading and promise to keep silent. After going through the house, including upstairs rooms, Miss Sandrom says the masked man left through the rear door.

Mrs. Wolff reported this morning that there was nothing missing. On reaching the department, some time later, Mrs. Wolff came home and discovered the girl in her plight. Police men came to the house on his motorcycle. He found the girl untied with a clothes line near the chair. She had been released by Mrs. Wolff on her arrival about four o'clock.

What convinced the police that there was no story to the story that there was a small amount of money lying on a table near the chair to which Miss Sandrom states she was tied. The fact that nothing was missing also is declared by the officers to substantiate the theory that there was no evidence of robbery.

Miss Sandrom told that no offense had been offered her by the highwayman. She described him as being about 35 years old, wearing a grey beard to the middle aged. Neighbors who were questioned by the police failed to remember seeing or hearing any stranger enter or leave the house or loiter around the vicinity.

CARING FOR BREEDING COWS

No Question That Growing and Selling Calves Under Proper Conditions Is Profitable Business.

In part, no doubt, the difficulty of getting a high percentage of calves arises from sending dry cows to the shambles. The cow that has suckled down often fails to get in calf next year. She is in calf and fat and away she goes. Another cow that has raised a calf takes a rest next year, and so on.

One advantage of selling the calf crop to the feeder rather than yearlings or older cattle is that so much more attention and feed can be given to the breeding cows and their higher condition and vitality will enable them to produce more calves.

If there is a shortage of feed it will usually be noticed that heifers that breed young and older cows that have been breeding take a lay off, and this is undesirable, with calves at present prices.

A good calf is worth $25 to $30, and selling even a few of these will furnish food to winter several mother cows that lay the golden egg. There is no question that growing and selling calves under proper conditions is a paying business, both for the grower and the feeder who buys them, as they go to the feed lot in splendid condition, but it will not pay unless the cows receive enough attention and are kept breeding, except as a more or less speculative proposition, depending on the prices at which cows are bought and sold.

Where the production of really high-class feeder calves is the end in view, these can be constantly increased in value by more feed and better cows.

WINDOW FOR A DAIRY BARN

Opening That Will Admit Fresh Air and Prevent Draft on Stock—Held Open by Cloth.

A practical dairy barn window is made by placing the hinges at the lower edge of the sash, as shown, and attaching canvas at the ends so that the cloth will hold the sash partly open, writes Ralph V. Crane of Ypsilanti, Mich., in Popular Mechanics. This will deflect the air currents upward toward the ceiling and prevent draft on the stock.

DOGS SHOULD BE DISCARDED

No Excuse for Sending Snapping Cur After Cows With Full Udders—Better to Take Horse.

When cows are in the pastures do not send a vicious dog to drive them in. The cow that is continually snapping at her heels must suffer a great deal of pain as her udder is thrown from side to side by the movement of her feet limbs. If a man is too lazy to walk after his cows he had better get on his horse and ride. A well trained dog may be allowed to bring them in, for he quietly walks behind them and does not bring them down the lane at two forty gallop.
